haccp.com

HACCP.COM PRIVACY POLICY
Last modified: 17 September 2020

Welcome to haccp.com!

When you use our services, you're trusting us with your information. We understand that this is a big responsibility and we work hard to protect your information and put you in control.

This Privacy Policy is meant to help you understand what information we collect, why we collect it and how you can update, manage, export and delete your information.

Our Commitment to your Privacy

haccp.com will not sell, trade, give or rent any personally or commercially identifiable information obtained from you to a third party without your consent.

It is the policy of haccp.com to allow Users to provide as much, or as little personal or commercial information to us as they feel comfortable with. You have complete control over the identifiable information haccp.com may collect. You have complete access to any information you have given us and to make any changes as required.

If you have any concerns regarding your privacy in relation to haccp.com and want to notify us, please contact us directly at achievegreatness@haccp.com.

Information that haccp.com collects

We want you to understand the types of information we collect as you use our Services

We collect information to provide better Services to all our users – from figuring out basic stuff such as which language you speak, to more complex things like which ads and content you'll find most useful. The information haccp.com collects, and how that information is used, depends on how you use our services and how you manage your profile content.

When you're not signed in to your haccp.com Account, we may store the information that we collect with unique identifiers tied to the browser, application or device that you're using. This helps us do things such as maintain your language preferences across browsing sessions.

When you enter haccp.com, we collect your browser type and IP address. This information is gathered for all haccp.com visitors. In addition, we store certain information from your browser using "cookies". A cookie is a piece of data stored on the User's computer tied to information about the user. We use session ID cookies to confirm that users are logged in. These cookies terminate once the user closes the browser. We use a persistent cookie that stores your login ID (but not your password) to make it easier for you to login when you come back to haccp.com. You can remove or block this cookie using the settings in your browser if you want to disable this convenience feature.

When you're signed in, we also collect information that we store with your haccp.com Account, which we treat as personal information.

Things that you create or provide to us

When you create a haccp.com Account, you provide us with personal information that includes your name, business and contact details and a password. You can also choose to add payment information to your account for relevant Services. Even if you aren't signed in to a haccp.com Account, you might choose to provide us with information – like an email address to receive updates about our Services.

We also collect the content that you create, upload or receive when using our Services. This includes things such as content you write and receive, files that you save and content you create.

When you upload, submit, store, send or receive content to or through our Services, you give haccp.com (and those we work with) a worldwide licence to use, host, store, reproduce, modify, create derivative works (such as those resulting from translations, adaptations or other changes that we make so that your content works better with our Services).

haccp.com will not (without express written permission and / or website approval) from the owner of such content, communicate, publish, publicly perform, publicly display and distribute your content. When you use the Approved Supplier Network functionality, you retain full control of who has access to your content. Under no circumstances do other parties have direct or indirect access to your individual content for functionalities such as FS&Q Program Manuals and Online FS&Q Training through the haccp.com platform.

For information about how to contact haccp.com, please visit our contact page.